Information for clients investing in VA-related products – a non-exhaustive list of warning statements

For virtual asset futures contracts, in addition to disclosing the general risks of trading in futures contracts, warning statements should also cover the risks specific to virtual asset futures contracts, such as:

- (a) the risks of the underlying virtual assets (eg, insufficient liquidity, high price volatility and potential market manipulation) may be magnified in trading virtual asset futures contracts by the speculative nature of the underlying virtual assets and the leverage inherent in futures contracts; and
- (b) the difficulty of valuing the underlying virtual assets poses significant challenges for investors in reliably valuing virtual asset futures contracts.

For all VA-related products, in addition to disclosing the risks specific to the product, the warning statements should cover, amongst other things, and where applicable:

- (a) the continuing evolution of virtual assets and how this may be affected by global regulatory developments;
- (b) price volatility;
- (c) potential price manipulation on trading, lending or other dealing platforms;
- (d) a lack of secondary markets for certain virtual assets;
- (e) most trading, lending or other dealing platforms and custodians of virtual assets are presently unregulated;

- (g) risk of the loss of virtual assets, especially if held in “hot wallets”;

"Qualified corporate professional investors" refers to corporate professional investors which have passed the assessment requirements under paragraph 15.3A and gone through the procedures under paragraph 15.3B of the Code of Conduct.

⁴ The following are some non-exhaustive criteria for assessing whether a client can be regarded as having knowledge of virtual assets: (i) whether the client has undergone training or attended courses on virtual assets; (ii) whether the client has current or previous work experience related to virtual assets; or (iii) whether the client has prior trading experience in virtual assets. - 6.4 A licensed corporation or registered institution should ensure that it complies with the applicable laws and regulations in the jurisdictions where its clients are located. - 6.5 A licensed corporation or registered institution should be satisfied on reasonable grounds about:

- (a) the identity, address and contact details of:
 - (i) the person or entity (legal or otherwise) ultimately responsible for originating the instruction in relation to a transaction;

- (a) virtual assets are highly risky and investors should exercise caution in relation to these products;

There is no assurance that a person who accepts a virtual asset as payment today will continue to do so in the future;
- (h) the volatility and unpredictability of the price of a virtual asset relative to fiat currencies may result in significant losses over a short period of time;
- (i) legislative and regulatory changes may adversely affect the use, storage, transfer, exchange and value of virtual assets;
- (j) some virtual asset transactions may be deemed to be executed only when they are recorded and confirmed by an SFC-licensed platform, which may not necessarily be the time at which the client initiates the transaction;
- (k) the nature of virtual assets exposes them to an increased risk of fraud or cyber-attack; and
- (l) the nature of virtual assets means that technological difficulties experienced by an SFC-licensed platform may prevent clients from dealing in their virtual assets.

6.9 A licensed corporation or registered institution should also disclose the following information in relation to its Relevant VA Dealing Activities:

- (a) its services in relation to Relevant VA Dealing Activities are only available to professional investors;
- (b) transactions for a client will only be executed on the platform of an SFC-licensed platform;

- (e) trading hours and other trading and operational matters.

Where contract notes, statements of account and receipts are provided by a licensed corporation or registered institution to a client, the licensed corporation or registered institution should ensure that the information included in the contract notes, statements of account and receipts should be fit for purpose, comprehensive and accurate in respect of the particular type of virtual asset involved.
